Herrmann 164 BWC On 11/23/2018, at 2036 hours, I responded to [redacted] Knighton Lane for a dispute. Upon arrival, I met with the caller [redacted]. She explained that she is currently going through a divorce with her husband Glenn Hann. She advised that she was concerned that her husband was throwing away her items. She also explained that he changed the locks on the residence and she could not get in. I spoke to Glenn Hann about these issues. He explained that the items that were inside the trash bags were his items and that he was not throwing away her items. He explained that he changed the locks due to her taking items from the residence that were his and he did not want her to take more of his things. I explained that since she lives there, he cannot keep her out of the residence and explained that process regarding that. He was still refusing to let her in the residence until she was to return the items that were his back. I explained to both that the two shared the property and that both parties would have to settle this in court as these items could be consider shared property. I explained to her that he was not throwing away items and that he requested his items back but she advised they were her. She advised she will be handling this in court and staying at a family members house. Nothing further to report. Rev. #129
